

Sinclair Broadcasting's decision to force their stations to air an anti-Kerry documentary days before the election is a clear example of the dangers of media consolidation, and the realities of media bias.

Sinclair uses the public airwaves free of charge, and is obligated by law to serve the public interest. Rather than a one-sided presentation in the service of Sinclair's corporate interests, Sinclair should be obligated to present unbiased reporting, or at least reporting that presents both sides of this critical issue in a balanced manner.
